President's Message

2019 has brought a number of interesting new developments to the Vigex salon.

We are very pleased this year with a significant increase in entry numbers – up more than one third from our last print salon. We received 2178 prints from 185 entrants across 31 countries. This is the second print salon in a row where we have had a send-on arrangement from the Maitland salon, which is proving popular with entrants.

We were delighted once again with the quality of the submitted work and congratulate the makers of all the accepted prints, particularly the awarded images.

This year we will display our exhibition in the Geelong Library & Heritage Centre which will be quite different from the gallery displays we have presented in the past. The library is conveniently located next to the Geelong Art Gallery which has been our previous long-term exhibition venue. We expect that our exhibition will be discovered by a large number of new viewers when they make a routine visit to the library.

Another change this year is the introduction of a new award, a Youth Award. We are trying to encourage keen emerging photographers to consider entering salons such as Vigex. We also want to expose our salon to the introduction of new styles of photography.

Unfortunately we could not make this award as very few images were entered, none of which were accepted. These youth images were judged in open competition with all the regular entries. This result was a surprise as we believe a lot of younger photographers make innovative and exciting images which could stand up well in open competition. We will have to rethink the whole idea, including our promotion methods.

On behalf of the Vigex committee of management I'd like to thank all of our supporters and all the people who do so much to make this salon a reality, including the judges, Friends of Vigex members and other helpers. Special thanks go to the judges for the time and effort they provided to make this salon possible. We thank entrants for their support and hope they enjoy and get value from their involvement. We recommend a look at the comments from each judge on the following pages. We thank all our sponsors, particularly our major sponsor Kodak alaris, and the Geelong Library & Heritage Centre for their welcome and significant help with the exhibition.

We hope visitors enjoy the display of the awarded prints in the library. All acceptances can be viewed as a slideshow using the salon DVD, or for easy access to specific images we suggest using our on-line Gallery, at <http://www.vigex.org.au>.

Next year Vigex will present an electronic image salon followed by our next print salon in 2021. We thank all our entrants for sending us their work and look forward to seeing more of it in the coming years.

Salon Jury's Word

Peter Calder

It was a great pleasure and honour to be asked to be a member of the team to judge the Colour Open and Nature sections of the Vigex 20th International Print Salon. I would like to compliment the Vigex committee on their excellent professional organisation for the judging weekend and making things so easy for the judging teams.

Being a print only salon enabled the organisers to lay out the entries on multiple tables and as a consequence judges were able to assess the images at their own pace. This also meant that judges were able to examine the prints as closely as they deemed suitable. In addition, being a print only salon means that the selection of the type of paper to be used for a particular subject was very important. It was obvious that some entrants did not appreciate this, and inappropriate papers were used in some cases resulting in the subjects not being displayed at their best.

There was a very good range of images submitted for the Colour Open section. Being a very popular section, it was important that images submitted were composed in a manner which had impact and reached out to the viewer. One of the aspects that I would like to comment on is sharpening. In this section we had the two extremes. Many prints had not been sharpened enough and others were over sharpened. Both situations detract from an otherwise good image.

Compliance with the definition was very important in the Nature section. Unfortunately, there were some images which did not appear to fully comply with the salon definitions and therefore the images were marked down as a result. It was noted that many entrants used fine art paper for their nature images and in many cases the paper had a very positive impact of the presentation. The only other area I wish to comment on, is the issue of image sharpening. There were a number of images in the Nature section that were over sharpened and consequently the quality of the image was adversely impacted.

Overall the standard of images in the two sections that I assessed was very good. The standard of the images considered for awards was excellent and resulted in some very good discussions between the judges before the final selections were made.

Finally, I would like to thank all the entrants for sharing their images with us. It was a great honour to have the opportunity to view your images close up and enjoy the finer aspects of your pieces of art. I wish you all the best in your future photography pursuits.

Gaynor Robson

I judged the Open Colour and Nature print sections.

There were some truly excellent entries in both sections and the winning photographs were very satisfying to the eye.

However it was unfortunate that many otherwise interesting images did not make the grade because they suffered from basic technical problems such as being out of focus or over sharpened.

In the nature section in particular it is very important to read the rules. Many images were marked down due to the presence of the so called 'hand of man' such as buildings, fences and overhead wires.

Careful post processing and print presentation including appropriate paper choice are issues that should be considered and can elevate an image above the rest.

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the VIGEX committee and the many volunteers for their excellent organisation of the whole judging weekend. As a result of their dedication everything went very smoothly, and I think we all enjoyed ourselves as well.

Salon Jury's Word

Vicki Moritz

Many thanks to the Vigex organisers for inviting me to judge this International print competition. I enjoy printing and it was a privilege to see the wonderful prints that were submitted from around the world. If I could offer some advice to exhibitors- print quality is important at this level of competition, please have a good look at your prints before posting to ensure they have a range and depth of colour or a full range of mono tones. It is disappointing to see a wonderful image spoiled by the quality of the print. And best if you post them flat- some were showing signs of being posted in a tube and were curled. Others were crumpled, post with care!

Monochrome- The award winning images were exceptional and were awarded due to not only their content and aesthetic, but also the print quality. The winning image was an exercise in shape, form and texture and was very well printed with a full range of greyscale on matt paper. It was disappointing to see some very good images printed poorly, lacking contrast and the range of black to white that defines a good mono image. There were a few images also with traces of colour, possibly due to processing. Watch for this. There were some strong portraits- mainly due to the use of excellent lighting. A few very well presented high key images with a wonderful aesthetic also stood out due to their differences.

Creative/Altered reality This section demonstrated a wide range of images, some of which did not meet the criteria for altered reality. There were some very well composited images that were awarded, but other entrants please remember just adding elements in photoshop does not necessarily meet the section requirement. Also watch the addition of elements into composited images- they need have a similar colour palette to the rest of the image and shadows to ground any inserted figures. Some of the composited images could rise to a new level with just a little more attention to detail. Well done to those who entered this section- I'm always amazed by the range of interesting images that entrants can conceptualise.

Travel- The final selection of images in this section could not have been more different. In the end the image which provided a social commentary on the world in which we live was awarded the first place. As photographers we need to be aware of the power that such images have to promote social conscience in an increasingly busy world. With the proliferation of paid models on travel workshops, this section has become more of a challenge to judge, some were marked down due to this factor. However, there were some excellent portraits with a sense of place and some landscapes that were also very good.

Differences in Society- The key word in the definition of this section was "difference". There were many images that were good travel photography but not demonstrating any particular difference in the particular society they represent. However, some had thoughtful juxtaposition of elements which met the criteria and were awarded accordingly.

Craig Parker

It was a pleasure and privilege to be part of the panel to judge the 2019 VIGEX Print Salon.

I judged the Colour Open and Nature Sections. Congratulations to the successful entrants in gaining acceptances and awards in these sections. Many of the submissions were of a high standard both technically and artistically, however, some of the printed images would benefit from different cropping, either to remove distractions or to improve the composition.

While Nature images cannot be adjusted by cloning, cropping is a simple way to remove many distractions.

Some images lacked detail and sharpness and looked to have been printed bigger than the image resolution allowed.

In a few cases very similar images were entered in multiple sections – I recommend against this, especially when one image is not as strong as the other. Finally, I would like to congratulate the VIGEX committee for the very efficient way the judging weekend was organised and run, a lot of effort goes into running a Print Salon.

Congratulations to all involved

Salon Jury's Word

Paul Robinson

With humbleness it was appreciated to be part of the judging panel for this superbly managed international salon. Providing feedback to participants is a useful tool to hone skills for those entering future VIGEX salons or any other international salon.

To unveil some of the mystery about judging, trained judges bring broad and deep knowledge of the manual arts (painting, sculpture, drawing etc.) and the scientific arts (photography – chemical & digital) concerning their conceptual, aesthetic, historical and cultural backgrounds. These judges assess images sensorially, intellectually, psychologically, emotionally and physiologically all at once which gives photographic artists a broad opportunity to surprise judges with excellence.

Pretty pictures have their place and will continue to do so, whereas meaningful images can be provocative, cause reactions, break away from the cliché and can be memorable. These may not be pretty but they have substance. 21st Century photography has undergone immense hardware and software changes for the better and the challenge is for the photographic image to catch up.

It is about the imaginative use of these new tools as well as context for today's lived experience such as climate crisis and issues around re-cycling, the environment, social justice, potential and real extinction of many flora and fauna species.

Monochrome Open:

Style variation was welcome as was a wide range of subject matter. Technically some of the prints needed a larger base file to overcome extreme pixilation. Emotional content, in addition to the ability of prints to provoke an emotional response in judges was appearing in a number of entries; this was a positive outcome

Creative Colour:

Entrants had an expansive approach here with a heavy reliance upon post-production processes. Composite images face the challenge of resolving concepts as components sometimes lacked a cohesive relationship with each other. This section is conducive to speciality and hand made papers. Consider psychological and emotional content.

Travel:

This was a visual tour of planet Earth. It is understood that time is precious while on tour, to avoid a point-and-shoot approach though, sometimes photographers need to 'stop and watch' to make high-quality images. Again, extreme pixelated prints with insufficient base megabytes made them unattractive regardless of their other qualities.

Differences in Society:

Referring to differences within any particular society, its intent is not about an alternative society perhaps located in another country, different from one's own. Within any single image a mismatch or dissimilarity between those being depicted is the difference. A proportion of the entries managed this distinction, sometimes with subtlety, sometimes obviously.

To summarise, findings are that high quality images were across all sections, not just technically but also aesthetically, emotionally and psychologically. Careful reading of the definitions would help as would an arrow at the top rear of the print.

Research the kind of image suitable for the sections as this will inspire and prompt ideas perfecting your own artworks.

Salon Jury's Word

Dr Gillian Turner

Congratulations to all those who work so hard to make VIGEX happen! It was a pleasure and a privilege to be invited as part of the judging panel for the 2019 VIGEX Print Salon.

The sections I judged were Monochrome, Photo Travel, Creative Colour, and Differences in Society. There are some general observations I'd like to make that relate to all these sections.

Photography is an art form that is absolutely part of contemporary art practice, and as such needs to be seen in a wider context of the visual arts.

With some notable exceptions, I felt there was a reluctance to take risks, to engage with contemporary photographic practice and move away from imagery that is almost becoming cliché in salons around the world.

Technically, many of the entries were of a high standard and there were some extraordinary images that showed sensitivity and strong social awareness.

At this level of international photographic competition judges expect to see a mastery of technique that allows the maker to explore fresh ideas, different perspectives and make powerful statements through the photographic process.

Some photographers demonstrated this with strong narratives underpinning skillfully crafted images.

Monochrome: The range of subject matter in this section was excellent and included images that explored abstract compositional structures as the visual intent. A number of portraits, social documentary and landscape images demonstrated mastery of technique and the ability to capture mood, and I commend all entrants who have received awards.

Photo Travel: There were many diverse responses in this section, and I commend those photographers who looked beyond the comfortable and the picturesque. Foregrounding the reality of environmental degradation, pollution and the more difficult aspects of travel is to be applauded.

Creative Colour is an exciting section to judge because the image-maker is being invited to take more risks and challenge not only their own thinking but also that of the viewer.

Altering the reality introduces an immediate visual response to the unexpected. When a strong photographic image underpins new techniques of surface treatment – abrasion, application of metal leaf, or collage, new ways of seeing come into play greatly enriching our understanding of the power of photography as an art form.

In the 2019 Salon, while there were some entrants who responded in exciting ways by exploring a sense of contradiction, asking the viewer to question and consider other possibilities, none took up the challenge of altering the image surface in a significant way.

I congratulate and thank all the award winners who took risks and created imaginative, thought-provoking imagery.

Differences In Society: What exciting possibilities this section holds! There were some strong interpretations, and it was encouraging that some photographers thought creatively and took risks with subject matter.

Unfortunately, there were far too many basic travel images. This section requires observation of the ways in which differences are revealed within the photographer's own or another society.

Photographers who were successful in this section presented images that responded to social contrast, contradictory perspectives or generational differences.

I congratulate all those who won awards.
